

3 TOP REASONS NOAH'S ARK MUST STILL EXIST

Reason #1 - Flood Legends: Independent and throughout the world researchers have catalogued over 300 flood/ark accounts. In their legends, the common thread is that people rebelled to a point where Divine intervention needed to step in, a way of escape is made, a vessel is constructed and several people survived along with a sample of all the animals to then repopulate the Earth. Also remarkable is at the base of Mount Ararat in Turkey are the ancient place names given of local towns and villages that point to Noah and the resting place of the ark. For example: On the eastern side of Mt. Ararat is the district of Arnoiodn. This name is composed of three Armenian words: 1) At 2) Noah's 3) Foot. The tradition is that Noah, in descending from the ark, first planted his feet on the ground in this district.

Reason #2 - Eyewitness Accounts: A good dozen or more credible independent eyewitness accounts have appeared in the last century. Their descriptions, for the most part, agree on the arks approximate location on mount Ararat (North/North East Side), shape of the ark, the curved hull corners and the position or state in which it lies in the mountain's valley approximately 15,500 ft. elevation. Two notables being Ed Davis (1943) and George Hagopian (1906 and 1908).

Reason #3 - List of Documentarians: Notables who have reported on the Ark.

Although everyone in this list may not have stood on the 5,000 year old barge, their acknowledgement of its existence, their integrity and their collective agreement makes for strong argument that something wood and large is on Mount Ararat in Turkey. The list goes like this:

- Moses - 1,440 B.C. Book of Genesis
- Berossus - 275 B.C. Babylonian Historian
- Luke, Peter, Jesus & Paul - 27 A.D. New Testament
- Josephus - 94 A.D. Book of Antiquities
- Marco Polo - 1,300 A.D. The Travels of Marco Polo

Conclusion: The researchers over the last 50 years who have made attempts to reach the ark admit that the turks know that the ark is there and seem content to let it remain "undiscovered." The difficulty of getting to it physically is compounded by the fact that the North East side of the mountain is in a militarily sensitive spot. On top of that, the ark has been encased in ice most of its long 5,000 year "sleep." Altogether, this prevents or makes it nearly impossible to be properly documented. Someday all of these obstacles may be overcome. Someone may snap a high res digital photo or video. Maybe a private in the Turkish army. Or melt back exposes it as Google Earth upgrades its mapping quality over the mountain. Until then we wait, explore, read the accounts and decide for ourselves if Noah's ark exists and if there was in fact a world-wide flood some 4,500 years ago.
